Dept. says ‘we’re here to stay’ with arrests after year-long investigation

By WHITNEY LEGGETT

The Irvine Police Department along with District 1 Constable Danny Conrad made nine arrests, served six warrants to inmates and wrote an additional two citations in a drug round-up conducted by the department over the weekend.

IPD Chief Brad Smith said each of the arrests and warrants served were a result of an ongoing investigation of the prescription pain pill trafficking problem in the county.

Other significant charges were for manufacturing methamphetamine.

“We’re doing everything we can to get rid of the oxycodone trafficking and meth in the city,” Smith said.

The arrests following more than a dozen sealed indictments from the grand jury last week and several Estill County District Court warrants.

IPD Captain Adrian McKinney said the early-morning raid started with a number of arrests on Church Street, an area of town that has become overrun with drug use and trafficking.

“Church Street is the worst street,” McKinney said. “It’s one of the smallest streets in the city, but there are more drug-related problems than many other places.”

Other arrests took place on Pea Ridge, Powell Avenue and Ann Street.

“This round up is to prove to people we’re still here,” McKinney said. “The [IPD] is still fighting and we’re zero tolerance.”

The following were arrested, cited or served warrants in the process of the round-up:

- William R. Dulin, 52, of Pea Ridge Road, was arrested and charged with first-degree trafficking in a controlled substance, first offense.

- Lisa A. Kelly, 42, of Pea Ridge Road, was arrested and charged with first-degree

Forum gives candidates chance to speak to Estill Countians

By WHITNEY LEGGETT
CV&T News Editor

A small group of Estill County citizens gathered at the courthouse steps for a forum last week.

The forum, moderated by Kelly Wallingford and sponsored by the Estill Development Alliance, allowed those running for several offices to tell Estill Countians how they plan to serve them if elected.

Sixth District Congressional Candidate Andy Barr (R), 91st District Rep. Ted Edmonds (D) and 21st District Senator candidates Albert Robinson

(R) and Amy Hacker (D) were given the opportunity to answer questions in the impromptu forum.

The candidates answered questions about the coal industry, education, healthcare and a number of other topics relevant to Estill Countians.

Barr, who is running against incumbent Ben Chandler (D), spoke first and began his speech with an update about his life since he was last running for Congress in 2010.

Barr has an infant daughter who he said has lead him to focus on a brighter future for America’s children.

He said he is running to “restore the American dream” by forcing the government to live within its means.

Throughout his time at the podium Barr stressed the fact his opponent wasn’t present for the forum. He said he believes the empty podium said a lot about Chandler’s concern for Estill County.

“Chandler doesn’t make himself available to the people,” Barr said.

Wallingford asked Barr to share his views on the war on coal and American policy concerning foreign affairs.

Barr said he supports the coal industry and small communities that ben-

Neal is also charged with theft by unlawful taking. In August Neal stole a vehicle belonging to Shonna Stone and flipped it while driving it down Kirkland Avenue. The vehicle was a total loss.

Smith said the department still has two individuals, one male and one female, they have not located that will be arrested for drug related charges. A total of 16 people were arrested or cited in the process of the raid.

Smith said he hopes the large number of arrests send a message to those trafficking drugs in the city.

"This is something we've been working on for a year," he said. "We want to show people we are doing something about [the drug problem]. The oxycodone problem won't go away any time soon and neither will we."

"The president has picked a fight with Kentucky," he said.

He said President Barack Obama and Chandler's war on coal has caused the loss of over 2,000 coal jobs. He stressed the fact he believes communities are built on the coal industry and it provides low cost energy and more jobs for citizens.

In terms of foreign policy, Barr said he was disappointed in the administration's response to recent murders in Libya.

He called the murders a "sober reminder we live in a dangerous world."

He said the administration responded by apologizing for American values and told the crowd he would never do that.

"If I am voted into Congress I will stand up for American values," he said. "I will never apologize for American values."

Edmonds, who has served as representative for 10 years, followed Barr at the podium and discussed the progress he has made for Estill County at the state level.

Edmonds is running for reelection against Gary Wayne Herald (R).

He said his goal is to help Estill County by supporting water, road and sewer projects and education.

He recounted the priority he has placed on education as a retired teacher, his strong support for the coal industry in Kentucky and the funding he has helped acquire for roads in the county, including a new section of the bypass.

He also stressed the importance of the helipad being built at Marcum & Wallace Memorial Hospital.

Most of all, Edmonds said, he wants to stand behind the local government as much as possible.

"My role is to support the mayors and the judge in Estill County and to help the people here make progress," he said.

Former Sen. Albert Robinson (R) and political newcomer Amy

Hacker (D) were both given the chance to tell Estill Countian why they deserved their vote for the 21st District seat.

The candidate elected would replace Sen. Tom Jensen who declined to seek reelection to pursue an open circuit judgeship.

Robinson told the crowd about his support of "guns, God, country and family."

He said he thinks he deserves votes because of his past legislative experience and because of his desire to reestablish strong values.

"I am concerned about the steady decline of the American moral fiber," he said.

He told the crowd he is against gambling and Obamacare but supports the right to life, the right to bear arms and the military.

Robinson's opponent said although she isn't a career politician, she has what it takes to represent Estill Countians.

She said her priority is to leave a better America for the children of today, including her young adopted son.

"Education is my top priority," she said. "I believe jobs are important."

Hacker said she will be the best voice of the people because she is one of them. She said she knows the value of hard work, family and education.

More information about each of the candidates can be found at their campaign websites.

participants who had made great progress while being involved in the program.

For the summer participants were served through WestCare and offered assistance in finding a job and outpatient drug recovery. All of the participants who are able to work found jobs and those who were not able, because of disabilities, worked in a community garden.

The vegetables grown in the garden were given to the families of the participants, distributed around the community and were used to make a special salsa that will be sold with profits returning to the program.

Natasha Rogers and Adam Neal participated in the program over the summer and told the court about their progress.

Rogers said she has been clean and sober for four months. She was able to get custody of her children, a job, a home, a license and much more through the program.

"I was able to find the support I needed," she said.

Neal told the court he couldn't really remember what the program was like when he started because he was so "strung out on drugs."

Now he is clean of all of his medications and said the program kept him from going to jail.

Davis selects the participants from an extensive court docket. For the first cycle, six individuals were invited to participate.

Four have completed the program and now have jobs and their lives back.

The two that didn't follow through have been arrested and are now in jail.

Estill County Judge-Executive Wallace Taylor said the program is beneficial for the participants and the county.

"We don't have to pay to incarcerate these people," he said. "And they get a second chance."

Davis said he would like to extend the program to those in court for failure to pay child support. He said these individuals are often unable to hold steady jobs because of addiction and would also benefit from the opportunity.

The approval to begin a second cycle happens to have taken place as Taylor declared Septemeber 2012 as Recovery Month in Estill County.

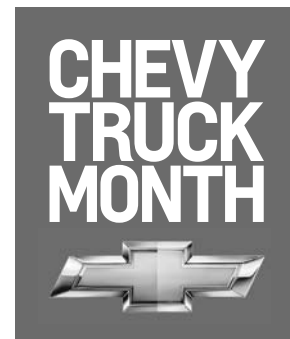

Deputy Judge-Executive Teresa Sparks read a proclamation from Taylor asking the community to recognize and observe Recovery Month "with appropriate programs, activities, and ceremonies to support this year's theme, 'Join the Voices of Recovery: It's Worth It.'"

Taylor also issued a proclamation declaring this month as Emergency Preparedness Month in Estill County.

In his proclamation Taylor discussed the importance of preparedness and urged citizens to take the necessary actions to prepare for emergencies or disasters, whether man-made or natural.

In other business:

- The court approved a Solid Waste Five Year Plan Resolution.
- Opened and approved a sealed bid for asphalt from Hinkle Contracting.
- Opened and reviewed sealed bids for new radios and hand-held radios for CSEPP. The court agreed to allow CSEPP Director Fred Rogers return to it's next meeting with recommendations.
- Approved advertising for 911 dispatchers.
- Approved advertising for CDL drivers.
- Approved hiring a 10-hour per week CSEPP employee.
- Approved a county surplus property list and sale.
- Accepted the Conservation District annual report.
- Accepted the Chamberlain Brand annual report.
- Approved the County Treasurer's report.
- Approved interfund transfers from the general fund to the jail for $130,000 and from the county to the road department for $64,000.

OPINION

Drug recovery is now a community effort

I was driving through Danville with my boyfriend the other day and noticed a banner stretched across one street promoting Recovery Month.

WHITNEY LEGGETT
CV&T News Editor

I was happy to find out Judge-Executive Wallace Taylor issued a proclamation declaring September National Recovery Month in Estill County, too.

According to the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration (SAMHSA), “Recovery Month promotes the societal benefits of prevention, treatment, and recovery for mental and substance use disorders, celebrates people in recovery, lauds the contributions of treatment and service providers and promotes the message that recovery in all its forms is possible. Recovery Month spreads the positive message that behavioral health is essential to overall health, that prevention works, treatment is effective and people can and do recover.”

When I learned more about Recovery Month, I was reminded of the heartwarming experience I had just over a week ago as 200 Estill Countians marched to promote awareness about drug recovery.

Those who participated in the annual One Day at A Time March for Recovery marched across the Irvine bridge into downtown Irvine and around the courthouse seven times. I learned the seven laps are symbolic in several ways.

I asked Deputy Judge-Executive Teresa Sparks for some details about the event and she told me each lap represents a day of the week and reflect the notion of most recovering addicts of their battle being something they take “one day at a time.”

The seven laps are also similar to those laps made in Babylon and symbolize a cooperative effort of concerned citizens to “tear down the walls” of drug addiction in our community.

I was touched to hear the testimonies of Drug Court graduates at the event.

They each talked about the huge difference being clean and drug-free has made in their life. They are now happy mothers, wives, employees and students.

Being drug free has allowed them a second chance at life.

One woman said she has been able to get a job, a drivers license, her GED and her life back because she decided to make steps to get clean.

In Judge Taylor’s proclamation he reminds citizens of the huge toll drugs have taken on our nation.

He wrote, “In 2010, 2.6 million people received specialty treatment for a substance use disorder and more than 31.3 million adults aged 18 or older received services for mental health problems, according to the 2010 National Survey on Drug Use and Health.”

It’s important for those of us who don’t struggle with addiction to recognize how drugs effect even our lives.

I can name a dozen people off the top of my head I know who have abused or are abusing drugs. I feel safe saying most of my readers could do the same.

Drugs are tearing apart families, damaging relationships and leaving thousands of children to fend for themselves or in foster care.

I wanted to take the time to remind my readers that if we don’t take a stand against drug abuse in our community, we will continue to see the steady decline of our families, friends and neighbors.

There are so many programs in our county already that promote recovery, clean living and awareness about the local drug problem.

In the midst of all the positive things happening this month I covered my first drug raid over the weekend. It made it clear to me there are drugs being sold and used all over our community, even in places we would least expect it.

It also reminded me there are people dedicated to stopping this dangerous epidemic.

Besides local law enforcement, there is Comprehensive Care, Alcoholics Anonymous meetings, weekly Celebrate Recovery meetings, WestCare, the Substance Abuse Coalition, S.A.D.D and so many more organizations extending a hand to those battling addiction. There are even national resources like the SAMHSA.

Information about these resources can be found at www.recoverymonth.org.

It’s important to know there is help out there. It’s even more important to recognize the quality of life an addict could have if he or she made the decision to get clean.

I am so glad to see a National Recovery Month being recognized, especially in Estill County.

The battle against drugs extends past September, though.

We have to take the welfare of our community into our own hands and continue to promote awareness, recovery and enforcement all year long.

A drug court graduate at the Celebrate Recovery March reminded us of this when she said, “It takes the whole community getting together to accomplish this.”

Soft drink limit in NYC serves up some super-sized controversy

By LISA BICKNELL
CV&T Staff Writer

While there has been some local outcry against the upcoming vote on legalizing the sale of alcohol in Estill County, there’s been reaction from all over the country to the news that the New York City Board of Health has approved a ban to limit the size of sugary soft drinks to 16 ounces.

The limit would only apply to drinks sold in New York restaurants, sports arenas and movie theaters.

NYC Mayor Michael Bloomberg pushed for the ban and has been widely criticized for it despite the fact that he has some pretty convincing statistics backing his position.

An article in the July 24, 2012 online edition of USA Today states over half the population of New York is overweight or obese, and nearly 10 percent of the city’s adult population has been diagnosed with diabetes. These factors reportedly cost the city $4 billion each year.

Still, public opinion polls show the majority of New Yorkers are against limiting the size of soft drink servings, the general consensus being that the government is over-stepping its bounds and interfering with personal freedoms when it tries to tell people how much they can drink.

Judging by the reaction of some who called in on a Lexington radio talk-show about the New York ban last week, I doubt the idea would fly around here either. Some people get really upset about the prospect of limiting the size of their drink cup.

I’m pretty sure I remember when portion sizes in restaurants were considerably smaller and nobody wasted away because of it, at least not that I’m aware of.

The fast food industry continues to push larger drink, fry and sandwich sizes upon us. Even in sit-down restaurants, the portions are huge, but if we’re paying good money for them, we often feel obligated to eat and drink more than we need.

Big Gulp cups and super-sized portions have resulted in a growing health crisis. One of the NYC Board of Health members who supported the ban said he couldn’t imagine the board not acting on any other problem if it were killing 5,000 people a year.

A professor serving on the board said that soda is “metabolically toxic” if consumed in large quantities.

Besides limiting the size of soft drinks that can be sold in restaurants, the ban also makes it illegal for restaurants to offer self-service drink cups that hold more than 16 ounces.

The law would not affect grocery stores or most convenience stores where large drinks can be still be bought, and if a restaurant still offers unlimited refills, then the ban need not limit the amount of soft drinks one can consume if he or she wants to, although it might slow the rate at which the drinks are consumed.

Mayor Bloomberg has stated that his purpose is not to simply limit sugary drink servings, but to educate the public and to force people to become more aware of how much they’re drinking.

New York is the first city to enact these kinds of restrictions, but I expect they will eventually find their way to Kentucky, since we have the unfortunate distinction of being one of the least healthy states in the nation.

I don’t like the government meddling in the private lives of individuals either, but here’s the thing: the government (with taxpayer’s dollars) is paying a huge portion of the medical bill for diseases linked to lifestyle such as diabetes.

The health care costs are breaking them up—well, that’s one of many things breaking them up, to hear them tell it.

Some suggest that instead of restricting drink sizes, the government should slap a “sin tax” on unhealthy products like chips, candy and pop.

That might not be such a bad idea if the money were designated to be applied only to health care and health education. At the rate we consume junk food in this state, the Medicaid system would surely receive a hefty economic boost.

Governments abroad are already implementing extra taxes on junk food. Denmark is raising taxes on chocolate, ice cream, sugary drinks and candy.

Maybe we don’t like the point Mayor Bloomberg is trying to get across, but he’s got a lot of people talking about a growing health crisis, one that will continue to affect every one of us, either directly or indirectly.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Citizens should have been able to ask questions at Estill County Forum

Anytime that politicians elected or as a candidate appear in public, they should always open themselves to answering questions from the public directly. This notion of making public appearances just to answer pre-formatted, pre-approved questions may make for great speeches and good commercials but does absolutely nothing for convincing a voter that they are genuine and serious about the issues that face people in many different ways. Individuals that arrange for these public events with politicians should share just as much responsibility in allowing the public a choice to have their individual voices heard. Without the people being able to have their questions answered by the politician, we don’t have a republic as this country was designed to be. We have an aristocratic democracy which is just another term for tyranny with the illusion of choice. Next time that a politician asks for your vote, be sure to speak up and force them to answer a question of your choosing; either they will answer and gain your respect and maybe your vote, or they will not and confirm why they do not deserve your respect or vote.

Thanks,
Virgil Edwards

Editor's Note: The letter above is a revised version of a letter sent to me last week from Mr. Edwards. In the letter Mr. Edwards pinpointed a particular political candidate and said this candidate should have fielded questions from the audience. It is a long-standing CV&T policy to be cautious when printing letters during campaigns. It is the policy of our publisher to not print any letters that single out candidates. The Estill County Forum on the courthouse steps was planned by the Estill Development Alliance and did not allow for questions from audience members to be answered. None of the candidates present fielded questions from citizens. It is unfair to single out a candidate when none of the others acted differently. Mr. Edwards said he was disappointed in my decision to not print his personal opinion this week. I hope my readers understand I am making decisions based on fairness for each candidate.

Horse Liniment Erases Pain

HIALEAH, FL — An ingredient often used to treat inflammation in racehorse's legs, is now back on the market in its original doctor recommended clinical strength formula. According to a national drug store survey, the formula at one time became so popular that it rose to the top of pharmacy sales for topical pain relievers. But the company marketing the product at the time changed the formula and sales plummeted. One of the inventors of the original formula has brought it back to the market under the trade name ARTH ARREST and says it can relieve pain for millions. ARTH ARREST works by a dual mechanism whereby one ingredient relieves pain immediately, while a second ingredient seeks out and destroys the pain messenger signal before it can be sent to the brain. Considered a medical miracle by some, the ARTH ARREST formula is useful in the treatment of painful disorders ranging from minor aches and pains to more serious conditions such as arthritis, bursitis, rheumatism, tendonitis, backache and more. ARTH ARREST is available in a convenient roll-on applicator at pharmacies without a prescription or call 1-800-339-3301. Now at:

Estill students selected for Governor's Scholar program

Trevor Freeman and Erin Combs were selected as Governor's Scholars and participated in the program this summer. Trevor went to Centre's campus in Danville, and Erin went to Bellarmine's campus in Louisville.

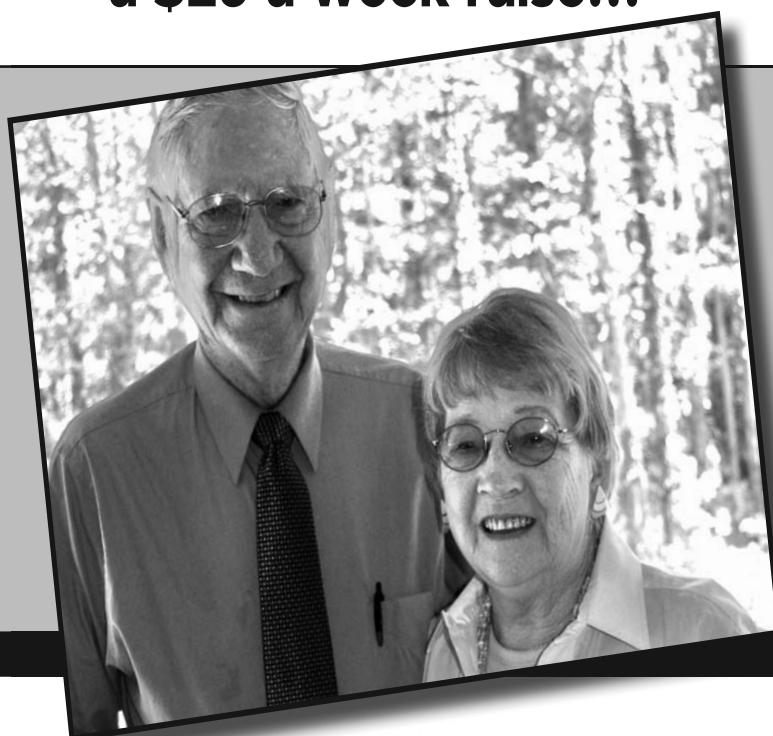

The Governor's Scholars Program is a summer residential program for outstanding high school students in Kentucky who are rising seniors. The Program originated in 1983 as a result of Kentucky leaders' concern that the state's "best and brightest" were leaving the Commonwealth to pursue educational and career opportunities elsewhere without fully understanding the potential of their talents at home. Students who are selected attend the Program without charge. In the spirit of partnership, the Office of the Governor, the Kentucky State Legislature, and private enterprise come together to provide the financial support for the Program.

West Irvine Elementary celebrates Patriot Day on 9/11

Students at West Irvine Elementary celebrated Patriot Day on Sept. 11, with an assembly to remember all heroes. ECHS Jr. ROTC Color Guard presented the colors and Colonel Patterson talked with students about what the flags represent and what it means to be an American. The National Anthem was sung by second grader, Ethan Martin, and several 5th grade students sang Patriotic Songs. Retired US Marine Staff Sergeant Marion Brewer, Korean War Veteran, read a book about the events of Sept. 11, 2001. Jeff Jackson also attended to represent public service heroes. James Woolery came to share his experiences overseas since the events of 9/11. Tammy Terry, school secretary, shared what it is like to be in a military family, and expressed that everyday should be Patriot Day. Even though the events of 9/11 occurred before most of these students were born, they have a better understanding of what it means to live in a free country. At the end of the ceremony, students and staff posed for a U-S-A picture in honor of all who serve or have served our country.

New studio opens on Main this weekend

By LISA BICKNELL
CV&T Staff Writer

In recent decades, 129 Main Street has been home to a chiropractor's office and a dress shop, but on Friday, Sept. 21, its doors will reopen as Dustin Stevenson's Photography studio.

With a growing list of customers, Dustin Stevenson needed a place for indoor photo shoots, to store props, display his work and meet with clients.

"Having a studio of my own has always been something I wanted to do, but I didn't really think I would run with it so soon," Stevenson said.

He says he's already photographed 10 weddings this year, as well as several engagement and maternity shoots. He's also photographed senior portraits, family portraits, newborns and children of all ages.

With winter approaching, he says the studio will become a necessity.

"I wanted a place downtown that would be convenient to meet with customers," he said.

The old store lends itself well not only to displaying completed work but for photo shoots, with areas of exposed brick walls, old hardwood floors and a punched tin ceiling to add interest to photo backgrounds.

Although Stevenson needed a place to anchor his business, he plans to continue marketing his skills throughout Kentucky and beyond.

"Having done business out of state, I hope that word of mouth helps me from there," he said.

Stevenson will host a grand opening celebration at his studio this weekend. The public is invited to come in and tour the building, have some refreshments and register for one of several prizes to be given away.

A booth will be set up for customers to take a fun photo, and DSP will be giving goody bags to the first 50 customers, each with a coupon for 10, 15, or 20 dollars in studio credit. The goody bags will include coupons for discounts and packaged prizes with other local businesses.

Besides the goody bags, drawings will be held for gift cards valued at $50, $75 and $100. Stevenson will also be giving away two 11x14 copies of one of his most popular landscape prints and a free session valued at $125.

Stevenson is a 2010 graduate of Eastern Kentucky University with a Bachelor of Fine Arts in Photography and Art History.

The grand opening will begin at 5 p.m. and will last until 8 p.m. on Friday, Sept. 21. Call 859-625-4056 for more information.

County Attorney: Estill County has high DUI conviction rates

Data recently released by the Prosecutors Advisory Council showed high marks for driving under the influence (DUI) prosecutions in Estill County.

County Attorney Rodney Davis noted the DUI conviction rate in Estill County from 2007 to 2011 was 90.3 percent, the 12th highest in the state.

The conviction rate for 2011 was 92.2 percent, 19th in the state.

Davis attributes this high conviction rate to hard work by local law enforcement officials and the attorneys and staff that work in the prosecutors' offices.

"We take DUI related offenses very seriously because they are a direct threat to citizens in our community," Davis said.

It is important to note many DUIs are not alcohol related but are the result of impaired driving caused by drugs or synthetic substances.

Since Davis has been in office, there has been a steady increase in "drugged driving" arrests that are caused by drivers taking prescription medications.

Davis emphasized that just because a physician prescribes you medicine, it does not mean you should operate a vehicle while taking the medicine. Many otherwise lawful drugs can result in severe driving impairments. You should always consult your doctor or pharmacist and read all warnings on your medicine before operating a vehicle or equipment.

Always report impaired drivers to law enforcement. Your action might save a life or prevent serious injury.

Stanton Housing Authority recently received a perfect score based on the Public Housing Assessment System score report issued by the U.S Department of Housing and Urban Development. The assessments look at the financial, physical and management aspect along with other categories which combine to allow a maximum score of 100 which was received by the Stanton Housing Authority.

Phyllis Rucker, executive director of the housing authority, expressed how great it was to receive a 100 and how good it was for the community as well as the complex. Rucker also explained that she was thankful to have such a wonderful group of people on her board and a group that was easy to work with. The Housing Authority Board is pictured above left to right: Bonnie Banks, Phyllis Rucker, Johnny Hurt, Fred Brandenburg, Stanton Mayor Dale Allen, Harold Kelly, Donald Lowry and Megan Davis.

His bond was paid by Lester Miller on Sept. 13.

MWMH hosts annual Teddy Bear Fair

Courtney Barnes from the Estill County Health Department told students from Mrs. Maybrier's first grade class at Estill Springs Elementary about the dangers of smoking.

Jaden Garrett, Hayden Woolery and Jarrod Stevenson take their turn feeling an artificial heart while learning about the organ during the Teddy Bear Fair last week.

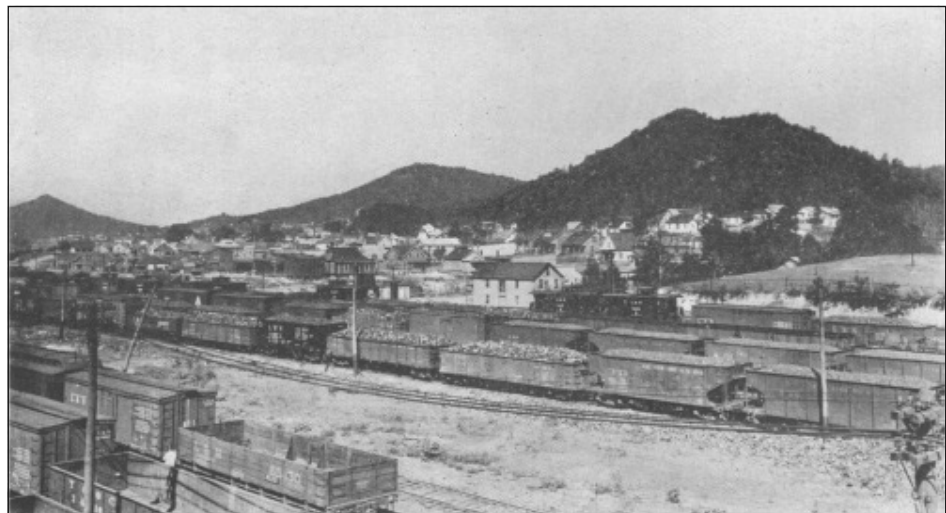

More than 600 first grade students from Lee, Estill and Owsley counties visited Marcum & Wallace Memorial Hospital to learn about different features of the facility including the emergency room, X-Ray and ambulances. Above, students look at x-rays of lungs.

Thomas Johnson fixes the bandages applied to his teddy bear in the emergency room at the Teddy Bear Fair. Each student was given a bear to take with them and act as their "patient" for the day. Johnson said his bear fell on the concrete and scratched his face, just like he did.

Marcum & Wallace Memorial Hospital awarded $450,000 federal grant to develop Project HOME Network

Marcum & Wallace Memorial Hospital was recently awarded a new three year $450,000 grant from the Health Resources Services Administration (HRSA) Office of Rural Health Policy (ORHP) for the development of the Project HOME Network. Project HOME (Helpful Opportunities for Medical Care Enhancement) is a rural health network made up of healthcare and community agencies in Lee and Estill Counties. The focus of the project is to increase access to healthcare for the uninsured and underinsured living in Estill & Lee Counties. The uninsured rate in these communities consistently exceeds that of the nation and state. It is anticipated that this project will improve the health status of the uninsured population in the proposed project area.

Project HOME is a collaborative partnership with several agencies that work together to develop a rural model system of care. Marcum & Wallace Memorial Hospital is the grantee agency and a partner in the Project HOME Network. Additional partners are Kentucky Homeplace, Marshall Emergency Services Associates (MESA), Kentucky River Foothills Mobile Health Clinic, Juniper Health Care, The Whitehouse Clinic, Mercy Health Clinics, Estill & Lee County Health Departments, Chamber of Commerce, Kentucky River Community Care, Comprehensive Care and Westcare.

The goals of the project are to provide a medical home for those patients that are visiting the Emergency Department (ED) on a regular basis for primary care and have no regular primary care provider. Second, assist the uninsured with transportation needs to medical appointments, hospital test and the pharmacy. Third, provide a means where uninsured patients can access specialty care through a voucher system. Finally, develop a program to assist in the recruitment and retention of primary care providers to Lee and Estill County.

One component of the Project HOME Network is the Health Care Navigator. The role of the Health Care Navigator is to increase the patient's access to care while educating them about the appropriate use of health care resources. For example, if a patient has a chronic condition such as diabetes and they are coming to the hospital's emergency department as their primary source of care, the Health Care Navigator will explain to them that their condition would be better managed by regular visits to a primary care physician.

Marcum & Wallace Health Care Navigator Jim Thacker says, "When you come to the emergency room for common ailments that should really be seen by your family doctor, you will often wait a very long time to see a doctor because emergency cases take precedent and have to be seen and treated first. My role is to help patients find a primary care provider who can give them the kind of care they really need and in addition, to assist that patient in finding a provider that falls within their financial means."

Frugal living becoming more of a necessity in hard economic times

With gas prices creeping up to the $4 mark and food prices expected to climb higher than ever this winter, who isn't thinking of ways to live more frugally?

I recently read an article that listed 20 ways to do just that and realized that frugal living comes pretty natural to me. I was taught by example not to be wasteful of food or anything else that has not outlived its usefulness.

You'll know I learned this lesson well if you notice the car I drive—or the old lawnmower I use, the one without a hood. My old mower might look funny, but it does the job—just as good as my hubby's much newer zero-turn mower.

I pretty much feel the same about buying cars. Why take a chance on a “good used vehicle” if the one you're driving is still running like a sewing machine, rusty spots and all?

Yeah, I know my ride isn't cool, and sure, go ahead and call me cheapskate.

Anyway, the article I read listed several practical ways of living frugally, including the obvious suggestions such as growing a garden, doing most of one's own cooking and baking, and canning and preserving one's own food.

Other suggestions for frugal living are to learn to sew and crochet or knit. I'll admit I'm not the handiest person with a needle. I don't crochet or knit at all, and I barely do any sewing, although I am capable of sewing on a button or tacking up a hemline.

Exercise was on the list of tips, the idea being that if we practice good health habits and preventative self-care we can save money on doctor bills. That's a great practical idea, one that people tend to resist, but still a smart one.

Learning to do simple home repairs like patching a wall or hanging shelves are good ways to save money, according to the handy-dandy frugal-living list. Duh. Most people I know wouldn't dream of hiring someone to do simple tasks like those.

When it comes time to paint ceilings, though, I'm tempted to splurge. I do not like to paint ceilings.

Here's a good tip. Learn to make homemade cards and gifts. Who wouldn't welcome a loaf of homemade bread or a jar of jam, especially those pressed for time to make their own? Or perhaps a knitted hat or crocheted scarf from those skilled with a needle?

Homemade decorations for the house are often easy to make and can cost very little. Digital cameras make it easy to take decent pictures, which can be matted and framed and displayed on the wall in place of “cookie-cutter” art.

Painted furniture is popular right now. It's not hard at all to achieve a rustic or primitive look with flat paint and a sanding block.

Other obvious tips for frugal living are to learn to change your own oil and flat tires. My hubby is really good at that stuff.

Here's a great frugal living tip—marry a handyman! (Or woman.)

Couponing is a popular money-saving skill, but one I admit I haven't pursued. I find that most food coupons are for processed items that I don't need anyway, or if I do snip coupons I usually forget to use them.

Another good tip: Learn to entertain yourself. Movie and concert tickets can be very expensive, and on the rare occasions that we spend money for such things, I usually feel some guilt. I can't help but think that I could have bought a week's worth of groceries or a full tank of gas for the price of a night out.

Besides, cooking up a meal with the help of a couple of college kids is pretty entertaining too and generally produces a more nutritious and less expensive product than meals bought on the go.

The bottom line to frugal living is, the more you can learn to make, do and repair yourself, the more money you can save.

Besides, you'll be so busy, you won't have time to spend money.

A local artist kept her promise she made to help with the beautification project started by the residents of Maggie Lane and Eades Drive last year. They created a flower bed at the corner of their road and asked her to add some paint to a large stone that was in the garden. Pictured above is the result of her labor.

Family Day is Sept. 24

A national initiative to remind parents that what your kids really want at the dinner table is you

The Estill Substance Abuse Coalition wants you to know:

On average, teenagers who use alcohol, tobacco and marijuana begin using them between 12 and 14 years of age, with some of the highest risk kids starting to use even earlier.

Help keep your kids substance free by being engaged in their lives, including eating dinner together often. The more often you have dinner with your kids, the less likely they are to smoke, drink or use drugs.

When talking to your kids about drugs:

- Understand that addiction is a disease of the brain that in almost all cases starts when your kids smoke, drink or use other drugs in adolescence when the brain is still developing.
- Acknowledge that marijuana, alcohol and tobacco are substances that are out there and that many people use them. Explain that tobacco and prescription drugs - like alcohol and illegal drugs - are also risky and can rewire your brain and increase the chance that you will get hooked.
- Start talking with your kids at an early age and take time to explain things to your child in basic terms that are easily understandable. Make your child comfortable talking to you about “difficult” topics such as tobacco, alcohol and other drugs.
- Listen carefully to your child. Educate yourself so you can answer his or her questions. As children get older, their questions get more difficult, so you need to be prepared.

•Peer pressure may play a pivotal role in a child's decision to use drugs. However, encourage your child to be their own person and make their own decisions.

•Tell your child the truth—that drugs, including alcohol and tobacco, may make them feel good for a while (by activating brain chemicals). Unfortunately, that feeling is brief and no one can know the true potency or lifetime effects of these substances.

•Try to impress on your child the long-term consequences drinking, smoking or using other drugs may have on something they enjoy doing, such as sports, math or writing.

•Point out that adolescents are in a period of life during which they need their brains to operate at full efficiency. These substances can impair brain function.

•Make the point that repeated “chemical activation” will eventually cause people to crave that chemical and want to keep using it even if it hurts them.

•Explain that these substances may dull a painful part of their lives for a brief period, but it will never change or help the underlying situation.

•Write a family “contract” established to make your opinions on all types of drug use clear. Be consistent with family rules.

•Be a model of healthy behavior for your child.

ENCOURAGING WORD: THE GOLDEN CHAIN THAT BINDS

Howard Coop

Guest Columnist

The summer, now ending, has been unusually hot and dry. We experienced a severe drought, and it had a profound effect upon the growing season. On many days, the temperature crossed the 100-degree mark, and there was little rain. But during the unusually hot season, my heart was genuinely warmed.

On numerous occasions during the summer, the rear doorbell or the front doorbell rang. When I answered, a kindhearted neighbor, friend, or family member, with a big bag in hand, was there. The words of greeting may have varied a bit, but the message was always the same:

“I brought you a little something from the garden. I thought you might enjoy it.”

Immediately and before accepting those bags, I invited the bearer of them to come in and visit awhile. Always the answers were similar. Looking down, those persons said, “I can’t. I’m not properly dressed. I’ve been in the garden, and my shoes are dirty.”

There is nothing bad about clothes soiled by work, but there is something more that is vitally important. In a letter, probably written about 61 or 62 A.D., there is some good advice for everyone:

“Clothe yourselves with...kindness.”

And our visitors who came bearing gifts from their gardens did, and their generous deeds revealed it.

The items they brought to us came not because of our need but because of generosity and kindness in the hearts of the giver. Indeed, they were clothed in kindness. Because of those acts of kindness, we enjoyed tomatoes, green beans, yellow squash, zucchini, okra, onions, pepper, and apples throughout the summer. The drought may have drastically effected crop production, but it had absolutely no effect upon the kindness and generosity within the hearts of neighbors, friends, and kinsmen.

Kindness is powerful, and it has a tremendous impact upon everyday life. Johann Wolfgang von Goethe, the German poet and dramatist of the eighteenth century, called kindness, “the golden chain by which society is bound together.”

AUDITOR OF PUBLIC ACCOUNTS

The Honorable Wallace Taylor, Estill County Judge/Executive
The Honorable Gary Freeman, Estill County Sheriff
Members of the Estill County Fiscal Court

Independent Auditor's Report

We have audited the accompanying statement of revenues, expenditures, and excess fees - regulatory basis of the Sheriff of Estill County, Kentucky, for the year ended December 31, 2011. This financial statement is the responsibility of the Sheriff. Our responsibility is to express an opinion on this financial statement based on our audit.

We conducted our audit in accordance with auditing standards generally accepted in the United States of America, the standards applicable to financial audits contained in Government Auditing Standards issued by the Comptroller General of the United States, and the Audit Guide for County Fee Officials issued by the Auditor of Public Accounts, Commonwealth of Kentucky. Those standards require that we plan and perform the audit to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial statement is free of material misstatement. An audit includes examining, on a test basis, evidence supporting the amounts and disclosures in the financial statement. An audit also includes assessing the accounting principles used and significant estimates made by management, as well as evaluating the overall financial statement presentation. We believe that our audit provides a reasonable basis for our opinion.

As described in Note 1, the Sheriff's office prepares the financial statement on a regulatory basis of accounting that demonstrates compliance with the laws of Kentucky, which is a comprehensive basis of accounting other than accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America.

In our opinion, the financial statement referred to above presents fairly, in all material respects, the revenues, expenditures, and excess fees of the Sheriff for the year ended December 31, 2011, in conformity with the regulatory basis of accounting described in Note 1.

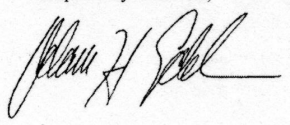

In accordance with Government Auditing Standards, we have also issued our report dated August 6, 2012 on our consideration of the Estill County Sheriff's internal control over financial reporting and on our tests of its compliance with certain provisions of laws, regulations, contracts and grant agreements, and other matters. The purpose of that report is to describe the scope of our testing of internal control over financial reporting and compliance and the results of that testing, and not to provide an opinion on the internal control over financial reporting or on compliance. That report is an integral part of an audit performed in accordance with Government Auditing Standards and should be considered in assessing the results of our audit.

Based on the results of our audit, we have presented the accompanying comments and recommendations, included herein, which discusses the following report comments:

2011-01 The Sheriff Did Not Invest Funds In An Interest-Bearing Account
2011-02 The Sheriff's Office Lacks Adequate Segregation Of Duties

This report is intended solely for the information and use of the Sheriff and Fiscal Court of Estill County, Kentucky, and the Commonwealth of Kentucky and is not intended to be and should not be used by anyone other than these interested parties.

Respectfully submitted,

Chapter 2

"I can't imagine what's in the box," Chloe said as we drove home from our appointment with Doc Albert.

"Maybe it's a bottle of pills or vitamins," I suggested.

"I thought about that, Woody," Chloe said, "But Doc has never put our medicine in a big cardboard box and told us to wait until we get home to open it."

Chloe had a point. Judging from the way Mom and Dad were looking at each other, I knew they were stumped, too.

"Maybe it's an exercise video to help us get in shape," Chloe offered.

"Maybe it's a treadmill," I said, hoping I was wrong.

"Why are you giggling?" I asked Chloe, Mom and Dad.

"I was remembering the time you turned the treadmill up too fast and you flew across the room," Chloe said, her giggling turning to laughter.

"Do you remember that, Woody?"

"How could I forget? I started out running on all fours, and the next thing I knew I was doing somersaults in the air and landed smack-dab on the head of the lady riding the stationary bicycle. It knocked the cuckoo out of me. And her too!"

Everyone roared with laughter.

"Anyway, the box isn't that big and heavy," Dad said.

"There are hundreds of ways to exercise without equipment, videos or gym memberships, pups," Mom told us. "We can exercise in our back yard."

"Really?" Chloe and I asked at the same time.

"Sure," Dad replied. "We can play tug-of-war, fetch or could go for a walk."

"Without our leashes?" I asked, hopeful.

"You know the rules. You have to walk with your collar and leash. It's for your safety," Mom explained.

Chloe and I looked at each other, and I saw my sister raise her eyebrow as if to say, "At least we tried."

Once in a while we were able to play outside without our leashes, but only if we were in a fenced-in area. I didn't like it, but I knew it was for our safety.

Once we were home, Dad carried in the box and placed it on the living room floor. Then he opened the box that contained the recipe to our wellness.

Rx for Woody, Chloe, Mom and

Dad

Congratulations! The four of you are enrolled in Kentucky Boot Camp. The trainers of boot camp will provide all the information. Each envelope contains a prescription. When you finish completing the task, you are to open the next envelope contained in this box.

"Kentucky Boot Camp?" I said, interrupting before Dad finished reading the instructions. "I've never heard of Kentucky boots and I can't imagine why they need their own camp. Soccer camp? Basketball camp? Band camp? Sure! But boot camp? Seriously?"

"Woody," Dad said as he laughed and shook his head. "Boot camp normally refers to military training, but it can also refer to any type of training activity where people are trying to get in shape. I'm assuming Kentucky Boot Camp is a program to help people get in physical shape while they explore various parts of Kentucky. Do you mind if I keep reading?" Dad asked while everyone giggled.

If you follow the directions on your prescription exactly as it says, you will lower your cholesterol, blood sugar, lose any excess weight and feel better. The best part is you won't have to swallow nasty medicine or endure any painful shots. Boot camp won't be easy. Remember, you didn't develop unhealthy habits in one day and you won't develop healthy habits in one day. You'll be finished with your medicine when you have opened every envelope and completed each activity.

When you finish reading this letter, open the envelope labeled Rx 1.

Good luck!

Doc

Mom reached in the box, retrieved the envelope labeled Rx 1 and read it aloud.

"Pack your backpack for camp. You'll need loose-fitting clothing, comfortable walking shoes, sunscreen and lots of water. No electronics are permitted, but one cell phone per family is allowed. You'll meet your first camp trainer, Sam, in the morning at Exit 33 off the Mountain Parkway. Be there at 8 a.m. sharp!"

No electronics, no sleeping in tomorrow morning! Yucky medicine was looking better all the time.
